

Guidelines for Performance-based Events at the Grand Hall

INTRODUCTION

1. Basic Information

- A performance-based event is a presentation or performance of music, drama, and other forms of arts and entertainment that can be hosted in the Grand Hall, considering its physical limitations. Such events may require the use of more sophisticated facilities, including advanced AV equipment, stage lighting systems, acoustic banners, and staging facilities or musical instruments.
- The Grand Hall is first and foremost a teaching facility. It is used mainly for centrally time-tabled lectures during teaching weeks. It is also used for University official functions such as the Information Day and faculty congregations. With its unique positioning and its limited availability, the Grand Hall is not to be considered a normal rental facility. The Hall only accepts bookings that will further the University's mission as a leading institution of higher learning. (For example, bookings for amateur variety shows/competitions/showcases, and events that may disrupt examinations or normal activities of the University will not be considered.)
- The Grand Hall has a capacity of 834 seats with the default stage, or 928 seats with the small stage. There are two dressing rooms with a capacity of approximately 20 persons each.
